THE TWO MEN

By Eric Sevareid

Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge, who eagerly seeks the job of putting his shoulder to our constitutional fifth wheel, the vice-presidency, is not celebrated in the land of knowledgeable for profundity. Yet it is he who has blurted out the lumpy, unpalatable truth -- that "we are in for 25 years of international tension."

He might have stretched the time-table even further. But, while the Back Bay pecking order may ordain that the Lodges and Cabots speak only to God, there is no evidence that God has even answered, so 25 years is a bold enough guess, even for a Brahmin devoid of doubts, without the double-check of a countdown from on high.

Lodge is Dennis the Menace in this campaign. In his barging insouciance he fails to detect the raiment of naked emperors, and with this blunt prophecy he has cheerfully denied the implication of nearly everything Nixon and Kennedy have been saying. They have been suggesting in their sales pitches that they keep remedies just under the counter for all our ills, from Latin gunmen and African tribalism to the Communist obsession with world revolution. Now Lodge has gaily announced that all that stuff under the counter is just palliatives, plasters and concoctions not yet approved by the A.M.A.

Like most present day politicians with the noble exception of Stevenson, the two Presidential candidates have been pandering, in effect, to that deep glandular urge we all feel but all know to be false -- the desire that history come to a stop, at least for a breathing spell. The Communists not only know it will not stop but jam down the accelerator at every opportunity. Kennedy and Nixon know it too but only Lodge proclaims it, in the tones of the instrument that both announces and penetrates fog.

There are no "solutions," no magic formulae, American traditional belief to the contrary. There are only palliatives, stopgap preventatives and new experiments to be tried, for ours is the age of limited opportunities. That is why this campaign does not really represent a choice of 'policies." The totally honest voter has to admit to himself that he just doesn't know whether getting rough with Castro will "solve" that problem any better than adopting what the Bristish call "masterly inactivity"; he doesn't know whether giving up or defending those off-shore islands is the better way of avoiding war with China; he has not the faintest notion whether delivering atomic arms to Germany or withholding them gives the better prospect of quieting Russia in Europe, whether we should encourage De Gaulle to be tougher or more lenient with the Algerian nationalists, whether tight or easy credit offers the better long-term prospects for our economy.

So only a realtive few will cast their vote on policy. More will vote on party and the vast majority will vote on personality. Woodrow Wilson once said that the national instinct is "for unified action and it craves a single leader . . A President whom it trusts cannot only lead it, but form it to his own views" This is still true, 50 years later. Even in our age of pulse-taking, endless committees and commissions of experts dedicated to "finding the way," we fall back on the simple, tribal instinct of choosing a Man.

In any case, the problems of America and the world are now so fluid and unpredictable that present "policy positions" are almost meaningless. What counts are the intelligence, understanding, emotional balance, and, above all the strength and will of the human mortal we assign to the frightful task of trying the new experiments. Little wonder that in the television debates the country has been weighing two men, not two arguments. I have been trying to do the same, reassembling my own impressions of Nixon and Kennedy over the years. They are these, in part:

Both men have been deply, single-mindedly dedicated to self-education in public affairs. Both are work horses; either would accomplish in a day three times what Eisenhower accomplishes.

Kennedy has a wider liberal education, though he is by no means the literary scholar his handy quotations from the classics would suggest. Kennedy is liberal by conviction; Nixon is liberal through political pramatism and has no systematic, philosophical base to his thinking.

Nixon assumes middle-class mores and values to be the normal life -- he has never known any other; Kennedy is fundamentally indifferent to them. Neither is a religious man (as Eisenhower is not), all the public posturing to the contrary.

Nixon's self-confidence is somewhat febrile; Kennedy's goes to the roots of his being. I would say that he is the "whole man," save that in his absolute lack of fear, self-doubts or awe of the presidency there is something disturbing, as with those medal-winning infantrymen in the war whom psychiatrists concluded lacked some chord or nerve cell normal to men. By the same token, Kennedy is devoid of self-pity, while Nixon can indulge in it.

In the sense that their ambitions rule their lives and the lives of their intimates, both men are intensely self-centered. Nixon is sensitive to the hurts suffered by himself; Kennedy is sensitive neither to his own hurts nor to those suffered by others. As President, Nixon would act a great deal of the time with an eye to the votes for his re-election. Kennedy's supreme confidence would make him less cautious and calculating in this respect.

I am not at all sure that Kennedy is a more intelligent or conscientious man than Nixon. What I feel quite sure of is that he is a stronger man, the kind of human creature who can make a fateful decision and, like Harry Truman, sleep soundly in bed.

Hospital Adds 53 Bedroom Units

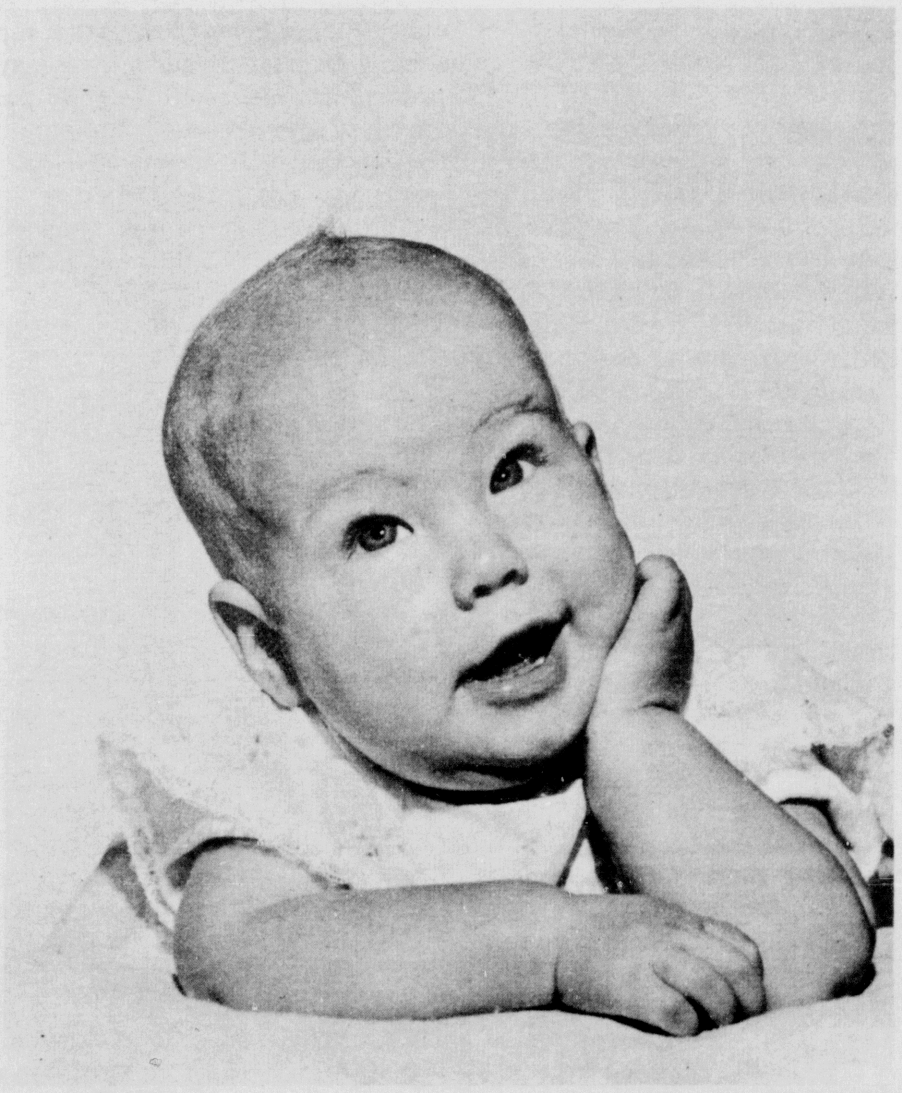

Fifty-three new patient bedroom units have been installed at the Warren General Hospital, administrator Joseph Williamson announced yesterday at a meeting of the hospital's board of directors.

The new units consist of automatic patient or nurse operated beds, overbed tables, beside cabinets and straight and easy chairs.

Mr. Williamson reported that the work on the radioactive isotope department is almost complete and the unit should be ready for operation in November. Dr. Albert D. Eberly, radiologist, and Dr. Donald L. Creed, pathologist, will be in charge of the department.

Both doctors have completed a course in atomic medicine conducted by the Atomic Energy Commission. The equipment for this unit has been purchased by both the Warren County unit of the American Cancer Society and the hospital.

Hey Mom . . .

Remember to turn that clock back Saturday night, 'cause I need that extra hour of sleep.

Flood Damage Committee Formed

A flood damage committee for the Warren area was formed this week when 14 individuals representing public utilities, the Chamber of Commerce (industry) and schools met with Vernon Houghton flood forecaster from Pittsburgh.

The basic purpose of the committee will be to readily obtain figures on flood conditions so that they may be forwarded to Civil Defense headquarters and the Federal-State Flood Forecasting Service, whose job is devoted to minimizing the damaging effect of flooding by providing time for evacuation, protection of property, rescheduling of activities, and operation of flood control works.

Communities may eventually be asked to appoint a committee, such as the one in Warren and Kittaning (test towns) for the further purpose of collecting flood damage data after a flood has passed. This local data would then be summarized for the community and for official use of Government agencies.

Mr. Houghton also pointed out this week that the drainage area between the future Kinzua Dam and Warren along the Allegheny River is 954 square miles; above Russell on the Conewango Creek, 816 square miles.

Marshall Jacobs of Little Valley, N. Y., pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny yesterday before Justice of the Peace Frederick Berry of Conewango Township.

Jacobs was released upon making restitution of a gasoline lantern and a shotgun he admitted taking from the home of Lillian Redeye of the Cornplanter Grant on Sept. 18.

A charge of burglary against Jacobs was dropped because of insufficent evidence.

Jacobs was arrested in Salamanca Saturday night on a disorderly conduct charge. He waived extradition and was brought to Warren Tuesday by Sheriff Donnell E. Allen, Jr.

A second suspect, Robert Biscup, now held in the Little Valley jail on another charge refused to waive extradition and Sheriff Allen said he would not enforce the retainer against him.

OBSERVATIONS

By Bob Walsh

ENTER BIGOTRY

Anyone who doubts that religion will play a part in the current election will not need to look farther than his own Warren county area. What you have seen by way of the mail and in distributed propaganda will not be as effective as what we anticipate on a local level in the days that follow.

It will not surprise us if there will be ministers taking an active political stand from the pulpits. We are certain that there will be congregations who will be contacted in some way by their pastors in an effort to sway the voting on a religious basis.

Those south of the Mason-Dixion line have no monopoly on prejudice. It is rife in the North and will be evident even in our peaceful little county in the remaining monents of the campaign.

Perhaps it is too bad that religion has been left out of the campaign as a subject to be openly discussed. Much enlightenment might have resulted. Too often it seems we duck behind the admonition, "Never argue about religion."

Perhaps you should not argue heatedly about it, but why should anyone of real faith fear an open-minded discussion? How will we ever learn to know our neighbor and to understand him if we do not go the big step beyond toleration?

It is not enough to tolerate people. Toleration too often represents a complete lack of understanding concerning the faith which in most cases serves as the fundamental marrow of our neighbor's character.

There have been frightening lies printed and distributed as a part of this campaign. They are even more frightening when you learn that some ministers have had a part in such deception, and even more terrifying to us is that confrontation by the truth, the historical truth, fails to convince many who choose to believe anything that is passed out on a pamphlet. Such as the statement that there are more Catholics in this nation than there are Protestants. The truth: 68 million Protestants, 39 million Catholics.

It is possible that the bigoted propaganda has been so obviously distorted that millions who otherwise would have determined their vote on other issues will now support Senator Kennedy. Many, feeling that there is little choice between these two men, will believe that much can be accomplished toward forever burying the religious issue by electing a Catholic, and thus proving that the nation will not move its capital to Rome any more than has been the case with states with Catholic governors, of which we are one.

Perhaps these distortions of the truth do not deserve the open air and the light of day. Perhaps they represent the last vain struggle against true religious freedom. But we are inclined to believe that a healthy bit of open debate could have cleared away much of the vague cloud that hangs over many eyes when it comes to religious understanding.

One cannot help but hope that Americans will rise above this bigotry and elect the Democrat. But this, too, is a narrow approach and its base is no more than reaction to religious perversion. Our true hope is that if they do elect Kennedy it will be because they ignore the religious issue and select him for his potentials as a leader of our nation.

The same goes for the selection of Vice President Nixon, but if he is chosen we never will know how much a part was played by the denominational rift. There is no doubt about one aspect of the outcome. No matter which man wins the analysts of the nation and the world will spend inches of column space telling you how it happened.

Catholicism has been around for hundreds of years. It has played a major role in history, much of it gloriously, some of it tragically. But we must not lose sight of human frailties, and to blame a religion for its misuse by man is to say that no philosophy or faith is of any value because there have been people who have made the worst of it.

We doubt if there is a church that has not been used for personal gain. We doubt if there is a denomination which has been around long enough to be a part of history that has not suffered from the misconduct of a few associated with it.

Let us not confuse what Christ taught and did with the performance of those who have lacked a true faith or understanding and have distorted his teachings to accomplish their own ends. You need not look far in any church to find such people. It is not strange that history has included some who have used the church to attain power in public office. If you look real close and are honest about it you still will find them, right at home in Warren county, and perhaps within your own church, whichever one it may be.

CAMPAIGN BY CONTEXT

Distortion and fog seem to be the chief ingredients of the current presidential campaign and we doubt if the air will be purified in the closing days ahead. The public is fed blurbs on an hourly basis by radio and television until certain statements, such as "he is a liar", seem to predominate and the issues are lost.

Where to place this blame perhaps isn't easy, but there is little doubt that one very guilty group is composed of those who use wire service for brief newscasts. Is it necessary to quote out of context in every news report? It is not fair to the candidates, nor to the voters.

We suspect that this campaign at the present time is close enough to assure either man the election through his style or approach But these are out of their control, no thanks to the news media which insist on emphasizing phrases and colorful verbiage which are out of context and do not provide a true picture of either man.

We believe that if either candidate would keep himself above the name-calling that now is in progress the contrast would be so apparent that he would win. Much of the public is confused about the issues, which in many cases actually will be handled by either party as the times dictate. Personality is very apt to play a major part in the decisions now to be made, but unless you are one of the fortunate few who have met both men, or have heard them in person, you have had little opportunity to gain a clear impression.

The tv "debates" have not helped the voter in this respect to a great degree, though they may have provided a test that will satisfy many viewers, rightly or wrongly. They also have amounted to "out of context" because of the brief periods allotted specific subjects.

If subliminal advertising is a potent force, the radio and tv news programs that succinctly say little on the hour and often on the half-hour certainly have fogged this one up with colorful metaphors and blurbs. This distorted picture, religion, and party lines are apt to be the influences determining the outcome November 8.

RECESSION WITH US?

Nearly every publication that deals with the economic trend is today admitting that our economy is recessing. It has been slumping since late summer. The Wall Street Journal has been discussing the lag consistently and this week the newsletter "Impact" distributed by the Warren Bank and Trust Company comments on the production dip.

Steel producers say their November level will be even lower than October's which represents a drop from September. Steel wages, as "settled" last January, will go up in December. Unless the car industry picks up, and that is difficult to do when less people are working, steel doesn't see a bright future this winter.

That unhappy combination could keep steel prices down, but we are skeptical. We will not be amazed if within the first six months of 1961 steel ups its price and blames it on wages, or the new administration if it is Democratic.

NOT THAT!

We read that Vice President Nixon has agreed to meet Senator Kennedy on the television screen again if he will talk about Cuba. Enough has been said about Cuba. In fact too much has been said about both Cuba and the off-shore islands.

Neither man will enter office with anything up his diplomatic sleeve and that is mighty poor international politics. These subjects should not have been developed as election issues.

There are some really good ones we would like to hear discussed. Nixon says Kennedy's program will cost $15 billion a year. We would like to have him itemize that. And we would enjoy Kennedy's answer. We don't mean a five-minute exchange and then off to another bit of statement and answer. We prefer a full-blown debate in which both candidates would itemize their approaches and their estimated cost.

If Nixon has the experience he claims, he is in a better position than his opponent to know exactly what is needed and what the bill will be. We haven't heard him budget his plans, but we have heard him budget his opposition's. The subject is big enough and vital enough to keep both gentlemen quite busy for a full hour of television time, and it won't embarrass our diplomatic corps in the least.

We know it is difficult to tell the public how much you intend to spend and where the dollar will be obtained, but it is about time we Americans became sufficiently adult to recognize the danger which faces us and be prepared to foot the bill.

Freedom in this perilous world never has come cheap, and the day you can buy it with gold alone, don't hesitate. Blood comes harder, and we are not a nation of turnips.

Union Vote Not Bossed

By Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON. -- While most of organized labor is for Sen. John F. Kennedy and is performing an important function in the registration drive and in getting out the vote a segment, including the largest union in the country, the Teamsters, is violently opposed to the Democartic candidate.

James R. Hoffa, the president of that union with complete and total power over its membership of more than a million and a half, has stopped short of endorsing Vice-President Richard M. Nixon. But he is doing everything he can to defeat Kennedy who challenged his power through the Senate committee investigating unfair labor practices for which the candidate's brother, Robert, served as counsel.

In one of America's largest cities the taxi driver, having first established that this reporter was not an agent either for the union or the taxi company, passed back to his fare a copy of the October issue of the Internation Teamster, the official magazine of the union published at the Teamsters' handsome headquarters here. I'll let you tear it, the driver said, if you tear my name off the cover so nobody can know that I gave it to you.

"Can you beat it!" He was full of a wry, half-humorous indigation. "Four bucks a month, $48 a year, that's what I pay in dues. And they put it into that kind of stuff."

The October issue of the union's official publication is devoted almost entirely to an attack on Kennedy, his brother Bobbie, and the Kennedy family. The leadoff is an editorial signed by Hoffa headed, "Will you keep what you have fought for?"

"If there was ever any doubt about the 'police-state mentality' of Jack Kennedy and his brother, Bobbie, " the editorial begins, "those doubts were laid to rest in the first national debate between Kennedy and Nixon last month.

"Speaking on major domestic issues facing our country, Kennedy showed his deep-seated hatred for this union and his utter disregard when he blurted out: 'I'm not satisfied when I see men like Jimmy Hoffa, in charge of the largest union in the United States, still free . . . Kennedy's 'police-state mentality' raises the image of Khrushchev, Hitler, Mussolini and others who took freedom away from those who dared to disagree."

"What do you know about that?" the driver said. "But I'll tell you something. There's 55 day drivers in my garage and I took a poll of them the other day, me and another fellow. And you know how it came out? There's 53 for Kennedy and two for Nixon.

"That's right, that's how it came out. And I'll just bet you that if we took a poll of the night drivers, there's about 45 or 50 of them, it would come out the same way. So where does this stuff get you?"

Besides the signed editorial, there is a three-page attack on Bobbie Kennedy's role in the conflict over the Board of Monitors appointed after the McClellan committee's disclosures of the dictatorial way Hoffa ran his union and used union funds. The article charges that Kennedy "rigged" the naming of Terrance McShane, a former FBI man who participated in the Department of Justice investigation into the Teamsters, to be monitor chairman.

"While Nixon's record leaves much to be desired," Hoffa is quoted as telling Teamster delegates from 12 states at a regional meeting in Chicago, "at least he has never introduced legislation designed to destroy the American labor movement."

A lengthy article is devoted to "The face that Jack built," purporting to show from the record that, contrary to the belief of many, the Democratic candidate is not a liberal in civil rights, labor or farm policy. And there is a dig at the Kennedy sisters who, it is suggested, loll about their respective swimming pools thinking up ways to put Hoffa in jail and destroy his union.

But if one highly articulate member of Hoffa's union proves anything it is that you can tell people how they should vote but there is no guarantee they will follow your advice when it happens to go against their own convictions. His company, the talkative taxi driver said, forbids drivers to wear buttons or put signs on the cabs they drive. But he flipped over his lapel and on the under side was a Kennedy button. And he has a plan to come to the garage very early on the day before Election Day when nobody's around and put a Kennedy sticker on every cab. Just the thought of this plot obviously gave him a chuckling satisfaction.

Twenty years ago the great John L. Lewis undertook to tell his miners how to vote. There was no evidence in November that they followed his command. And it would seem that today the "union bosses" have rather less power than the extreme right ascribes to them.

Pulitzer Staff

Looking over the staff of writers whose work soon will be seen daily in the Observer we wouldn't be out of order if we were to describe it as the Pulitzer syndicate. These are New York Times men and are not replacements for, but additions to, our present line-up of top writers. Let's talk about a few.

Taking them alphabetically, we can start with Hanson W. Baldwin, military editor for The New York Times and the Observer, whose reporting on Pacific battle areas won him the Pulitzer Prize.

Homer Bigart, African correspondent, has won two Pulitzer Prizes, one for Pacific war coverage and the other for articles on the Korean War.

Arthur Daley, who writes "Sports of The Times", earned his Pulitzer Prize for outstanding sports reporting.

Arthur Krock, author of a column, "In the Nation", has won two Pulitzer Prizes for Washington news coverage.

William L. Laurence, who was official reporter of the A-bomb for the War Department and now is our science editor, has won two Pulitzer Prizes. One of these was for his coverage of the dawn of the atomic age. He was the only reporter present when the first A-bomb was tested in New Mexico, and was in the plane that dropped the bomb on Nagasaki.

Anthony Lewis covers the United States Supreme Court and the Department of Justice. His investigation of a Navy department employe, fired as a security risk, resulted in reinstatement and won him the Pulitzer Prize.

James "Scotty" Reston is chief of the New York Times Washington bureau and writes three columns a week. He twice has been a Pulitzer Prize recipient, once for his coverage of the Dumbarton Oaks Security Conference and again for distinguished Washington reporting.

Harrison E. Salisbury, general reporter, has received a Pulitzer Prize for articles on Russia, and has written two books about that nation.

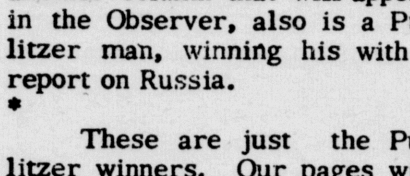

C. L. Sulzberger writes European news and was awarded a special Pulitzer citation for his exclusive prison-cell interview with the late Cardinal Stepinac of Yugoslavia. He has written three books: "Sit Down With John L. Lewis". "The Big Thaw", and "What's Wrong With U. S. Foreign Policy."

Brooks Atkinson, who puts together "Critic at Large", another column that will appear in the Observer, also is a Pulitzer man, winning his with a report on Russia.

*

These are just the Pulitzer winners. Our pages will be supplied with the work of many other big names in the writing field, all of them tops in their specialties. We will discuss them briefly in coming editions.

Promises Promises Promises

By Inez Robb

Never have so many been promised so much by so few (Vice-President Nixon and Senator Kennedy). Whoever is elected next month, we should all be as happy as kings, and as well-heeled, too.

Let's see now: What are the goodies in store for us ... Well, Mr. Eisenhower is going to hie 'round the world as America's roving ambassador (you mean Louie Armstrong is going to lose that distinction?), medical bills will vanish, hospitalization costs will disappear; it will be all play and no work with 250 percent of parity for the farmer, and as for the farmer's daughter, WOW!

Silver threads among the gold will hearld the most joyous time of life, the little-business man will become the big-business man; Johnny will be reading "Pilgrim's Progress" and for fun; teacher will rate the public esteem and salary of Marilyn and Brigitte, Khrushchev will be deprived of his other shoe and there will be two Jaguars in every pot.

So far, so good. But who does not remember that superb election story of that great raconteur, the late Vice-President Alben Barklay, that ended, "Yes, but you ain't done anything for me lately."

My gratitude for the revolution in man's well-being that indubitably will take place after Nov. 8 is tempered with two doubts. A word from either candidate will banish both -- the doubts, not the candidates.

First, what is their stand on billboards that deface the highways and both uglify and scarify the great beauty of this, our own, our native land?

And will each candidate tell me where he stands not only on the total abolition of billboards, but if he is willing to include me under the provisions of the 27 1/2 percent depletion tax that makes Texans and other oil and mineral men so Rolls-Royce rich?

Mind, now, I don't object to the oil men getting their 27 1/2 percent depletion cut; all I want is to share the swag. As a matter of fact, I don't even go as far as that. I don't want to share THEIR riches. All I ask is the same tax break for myself and the rest of us hard-working stiffs.

Every time I write a column, I deplete my store by just that much. And, alas, oil wells aren't the only gambles in life that come up dusters. It isn't the thesis of this plea to the candidates that any future administration should deprive oil men of their 27 1/2 percent tax gift; it is simply my contention that the rest of us ought to be allowed to get in under that tax tent. Just give the rest of us taxpayers parity with the panhandlers! That's all, and it's only fair

And while I am about it, how do the candidates stand either on abolishing the tax on women's handbags or taxing each pocket in a man's suit, vest, sweater and overcoat? How about it, gentlemen? Women have had to submit to this unfair and dastardly tax far too long. Do you prefer to repeal it or tax your own pockets?

As for billboards -- let us have a clear-cut unequivocal stand (perish forbid! I am beginning to sound just like one of them; a candidate, that is!) on this issue. Gentlemen, do you side with the rich, powerful and ruthless billboard lobby that America, the Beautiful, was made simply that it might be despoiled for the profits of the few who deface it with advertisements of their wares?

Do the two candidates for the Presidency believe that nothin, not even the nation's rocks and rills, her woods and templed hills, is sacred except money, no matter how earned? Do they believe the bilge put out by the billboard lobby to the effect that nothing is so dangerous to the motorist as the undiluted beauty of American scenery? That billboards make for safe driving?

Gentlemen, do you stand for the continued desecration of your country, or will you back legislation to throw out these modern carpetbaggers?

Today and Tomorrow . . .

THE FIFTH DEBATE AND CASTRO

By Walter Lippmann

So far I have not met anyone who heard the fourth debate and is yearning to have a fifth. Mr. Kennedy, however, is pressing for a fifth, and Mr. Nixon, after explaining that he was too busy, is now in favor of a fifth, provided it is devoted exclusively to the subject of Castro.

Mr. Kennedy's main reason for wanting another debate is that this is the best way he can meet some last minute surprise, some last minute "crisis" which his opponents may bring off. Mr. Nixon's reason is that he thinks he has found in Cuba a good talking point.

On the whole, it is better, I would say, to have a fifth debate than not to have it. But to devote it exclusively to Castro would be preposterous. Castro is not all that important. To set him up as the main issue to decide who should be President of the United States is beneath the dignity of this country.

Having said this, I must admit that I have not liked Mr. Kennedy's making so much of a campaign issue of Cuba. Although he is right in criticizing the support which we gave to Batista, although he is sound in his criticism of our support of other Latin American dictators and of our general failure to support and sympathize with the progressive movements in Latin America, I do not think he is right when he talks as if there were anything effective which this country can now do to get rid of Castro. The policy of the Administration since the fall of Batista has been, so I believe, about the best that was possible given all the circumstances.

However, until last week Mr. Kennedy was on a sound line when he attacked the general policy of the Administration in its relations with dictators, reactionaries, and progressives in Latin America. Then he made a mistake, which was to make it sound as if he were promising support to the Cuban enemies, barring the Batista men, of Castro. This was contrary to the letter and the spirit of our many treaties and pledges made to our American neighbors. Mr. Kennedy, who would, I believe, make much the better President, is not infallible. He is human and it is human to err.

Mr. Nixon's show of righteous indignation is, however, false and insincere. What he is advocating is an "economic and political quarantine" of Castro's Cuba. This is false on two counts. In the first place what the Administration is doing in Cuba is not, as Administration experts are at great pains to explain, a political and economic quarantine. If it were, it would be a major violation of that very Inter-American Treaty which Mr. Nixon quotes against Mr. Kennedy.

Moreover, what Mr. Kennedy advocated looks towards doing in Cuba what the Administration, as all the world knows, did do in Guatemala. The only difference is that Mr. Kennedy very unwisely said what he would do about Cuba in the future, whereas the Eisenhower administration has been boasting about what it did do in the past in Guatemala. What this shows is that neither side seems to have learned the lesson, so flagrantly illustrated in the U-2 affair, that when a government goes into the political black market it must keep its mouth shut.

The general doctrine, of which Mr. Kennedy's mistake is an application, is in the old American tradition, which was strongly enunciated by Woodrow Wilson, that the governments of our adversaries should be overthrown. This was the doctrine which the late John Foster Dulles wrote into the Republican platform of 1952.

As a policy, it has not worked and has had to be abandoned. The worst thing about it is that it misleads our friends and subjects them to dangers against which we are powerless to protect them.

A tragic example of this occurred on Nov. 4, 1956, during the Hungarian uprising and the Russian invasion to suppress it. There was an emergency meeting of the Security Council that day, and Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge was not only the American spokesman but, because Mr. Dulles had had to go to the hospital for an operation, was the head of the American delegation.

Three hours after the Russian radio had announced the military attack on the uprising in Budapest, Mr. Lodge said to the Security Council, "We can truly say to the Hungarian people, 'By your heroic sacrifice you have given the United Nations a brief moment in which to mobilize the conscience of the world on your behalf. We are seizing that moment, and we will not fail you.'"

This promise of help was preceded by Mr. Lodge's saying, "If ever there was a time when the action of the United Nations could literally be a matter of life and death for a whole nation, this is that time...Shortly after midnight I requested a Sunday meeting of the Security Council to deal with this agony of the Hungarian people. Five minutes later the fact of this request was broadcast by Radio Budapest. That shows how quickly what we say and do here affects the people of Hungary in their struggle."

We all know now that what we did was nothing and that the promise of help was not fulfilled. It is a lesson in why a government must never make promises which it cannot surely fulfill.

Halloween Parade And Party Tonight At 7:30

The annual Halloween parade and party, sponsored by the Warren Junior Chamber of Commerce, is scheduled to start promptly at 7:30 p.m. this evening when the Warren high school Band, under the direction of Harry Summers, leads the parade of masqueraders through the streets of downtown Warren. Everyone is invited to join in this pageant, both kiddies and adults alike.

Following the parade, judging in five different age categories will take place at the "Spot" in the YMCA. To be selected for prizes will be pre-school children, grade school pupils, students from junior and senior high schools, and adults. A fabulous array of prizes have been donated by Warren merchants, and the first through fourth place winners in each age group will receive recognition.

Judging the costumed paraders will be Mrs. Ruth Levinson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hegerty, Beaty art teacher Mr. Vernon Mauk, and Miss Nancy Cashmere, the new Y-Teen director of the YWCA.

Following the awarding of prizes, a party with all the Halloween trimmings and a dance free of charge will be held. Cider, donuts, season candy, cookies, and ice cream are just a few of the "goodies" which will be made available.

Music for the dance will be furnished by the Youth Canteen, and once more everyone is invited to participate.

SHEFFIELD STUDENTS TO COLLECT FOR UNICEF

The 5th and 6th Grade students of Washington school will collect for UNICEF in each child's own neighborhood - this will also include Roystone, Barnes and Cherry Grove.

Containers will be left in the business district of Sheffield for all others who may wish to give. They will be put out today and then picked up by the Washington PTA after Halloween.

The students will be collecting on Monday evening, October 31, and may be identified by their UNICEF markings.

TELEVISION & RADIO

VISITING CRITIC

Peter Black is a black-haired, tart-tongued, tart-visaged individual who could easily be mistaken for a critic which, as a matter of fact, is what he is. Black, who is in this country on a Ford Foundation traveling fellowship, is television critic for "The London Daily Mail," one of the few newspapers in London (or anywhere else) which takes television seriously enough to criticize it.

I asked him to give me a capsule criticism of television in England and he replied approximately as follows: "A lot of good work is being done in England, especially in plays. They do quite a lot of good original drama with a good many high quality adaptations. But, I'm afraid there is also a good deal of Grade II drama also. Sociological soap opera, I call it. There's a serial called 'Emergency Ward 10' which is a degree or two better than plain soap opera." (I've seen this one and its chief improvement over our soap opera is the superb diction of the nurses who can say: "Are you feeling bettah?" with overwhelming self-assurance.)

"Most of the time, the common ground turns away from quality rather than toward it In prime evening time there is the same unwillingness to experiment that I find here. Always be safe and cautious and give the people what they want. That's the watchword. If you give the people what they want, then you will always be behind them. What worries me most is the general lack of humility among the top people in commercial television in England.

"Really, it's rather terrifying to have that much complacency founded on not much solid achievement. They are rather like fish and chip salesmen who have made fortunes because a lot of people are willing to pay four and six for a packet of fish and chips worth only four shillings. Television producers walk around acting like a combination of Barnum and Bailey, C.B. Cochran, and Florenz Ziegfeld rolled into one when all they've done is put 'Wagon Train' in the top ten. I must smile a wry smile.

"It's curious that American producers are not in favor of more government control. I've met a lot of courageous American producers--people like Irving Gitlin, for example--who feel there is less challenge in greater control. But does a butcher have the right to poison me by selling me rotten meat just because I can't tell the difference between good meat and rotten meat? Has television the right to debilitate the minds of people whose tastes are not yet formed? People are not born with a taste for Bernard Shaw. That must be acquired."

I asked Mr. Black to compare run-of-the-mill television in my country and his. "American television is better than ours," he said promptly, "for one simple reason. At least you make your own rubbish. You don't just buy it. British television is becoming television by checkbook. That's really rock-bottom.

"Sometimes in England--and I'm sure it happens here--people in the industry come to the conclusion that the critic must have a personal grudge against the producer of the show or an executive at the network. It's inconceivable to these people that you are just saying what you think. That's what I mean by lack of humility.

"The Give the People What They Want school of television is very smug. It's true that people accept awful rubbish but to say they want it is something else again. Even if they did want it, it's not an admirable point of view. The industry shouldn't accept this. They should do something about it.

"However, except for its light entertainment and its American rubbish, British television is pretty good. You see, we at least have the BBC and it still has a wonderful freedom to do what it wants. That freedom has actually been given an edge of competition by commercial television. Because of commercial television, the BBC has improved its quality. It's less stuffy and patronizing, particularly in the handling of news. On the whole, British television is not as inventive as American television. There is nothing like Jack Paar over there."

SHORTENING THE WINTER

We plan to offer you some reading this winter that may help the dark days pass in lighter fashion. Our columns soon are to be augmented by leading critics and commentators on the arts. One of the top men in this field is Brooks Atkinson who does a column, "Critic at Large," every Thursday and Friday for the New York Times. He has been a drama critic for more than thirty years but his work has gone beyond the limits of the stage. Though he has retired as drama critic of The Times he has consented to do the column mentioned and it now is appearing regularly.

The present drama critic is Howard Taubman, who is better known to most readers for his years as music critic for The Times. Under his influence The Times music coverage expanded and the paper became a leader in this field.

In this shifting of jobs a music critic was necessary and into that slot moved Harold C. Schonberg. This placed him in a select company of arts and education writers, which includes Jack Gould, radio-tv critic; Bosley Crowther, movie critic; John Canaday, art critic, and Fred M. Hechinger, education editor.

These specialists and many others will contribute to our pages soon and we are sure that all who are devotees of music, drama, books, education, and the numerous categories influenced by the muse should find satisfaction on these pages. And those who may be curious enough to browse a bit in such fields probably will find new interests that will add much to the fullness of their lives.

NEW BOOK SOURCE

An attractively-styled brochure reached our desk a few days ago, announcing the birth of a new publishing house, Rudo S. Globus, Inc. Globus books are distributed in association with the Viking Press, and both firms are located in New York City.

Eight books which will be published early in 1961 are briefly described. In the foreword, Rudo S. Globus, publisher, expresses his "thanks and devotion to one of the wisest men I have known, who accorded me the privilege of publishing his first book." He is referring to Alfred M. Landon, whose book "For the New President and the American People" will be released Jan. 20, 1961. The former Governon of Kansas and Republican candidate for President in 1936 offers a non-partisan testament in which he lays bare the true nature of American political life; suggests insight and long-term plans on major problems of today and the future, such as integration, farm problems, labor-management, legislation, foreign policy, economic planning, city development, industrial growth, political strength and revival for both parties.

"The Power of the Black," by M. B. Longman (pseudonym for its two authors) is a 600-page novel ranging from the eve of the Civil War to today. It is the story of oil, from its beginnings to the titans of American and Arabian fields, from Pennsylvania, Texas, Oklahoma and New York to Paris, Beirut and Cairo. This history of a family, of a power and the human beings and mysterious mechanisms that destroyed empires, will be released Feb. 20, 1961.

Coming March 6, 1961, is Margaret Gray Blanton's "The White Unicorn," a novel which explores love in all its forms - perverted and sacred, simple and complex, physical and emotional. The central figure is a young girl leaving childhood to enter a strange and demanding new world.

A successful psychiatric practitioner, Dr. Smiley Blanton, will have his new book, "Take These Steps," ready for publication on March 20. Its purpose is to help the individual by himself achieve increased human effectiveness.

Another M. D., William M. Hitzig, offers "Margin of Safety," on March 8. This noted cardiologist and internist offers a treatise for the host of sick and ailing people who cannot and will not behave the way medical textbooks demand for successful therapy.

"Perversion: A History of Waxey Gordon and the United States" is authored by William F. Dufty and scheduled to hit the bookstores Feb. 27. Using the case of a notorious criminal, Mr Dufty reveals the whole gamut of 20th Century American social history.

Basic economics, with its dry and dusty theories, is translated into fascinating, personal, easily-grasped prose by John F. Wharton. After March 13, publication date, anyone can become more informed on such subjects as corporations, national debt, stock market, money and banking, credit and taxes.

"Adeline," by Frida S. Bucky and with illustrations by Jeanne Owens, is a new version of a beloved children's classic. A unique feature is the inclusion of all the songs written for the book, recorded and inserted at the back of the book. Text and records will be released March 8.

Books in the planning stage by Rudo S. Globus, Inc. include a new work on Lincoln; an important novel by a major American philosopher; and a classic by a member of the French Academy.

In spite of, or perhaps because of, all the distractions of modern living, books continue to be written, published and read And in ever increasing numbers.

Needlework Guild In—gathering Nov. 4th

The Warren County Branch of the Needlework Guild of America, Inc., met in the YWCA last Friday afternoon and received reports of things needed from the representatives of the State Public Health Service, the Visiting Nurses Association, Family Service and Children's Aid Society, Warren Relief, Warren State Hospital and Warren General Hospital.

Their needs are as follows: State Public Health Nurses request, a. - infants' clothes for new babies; b. - money for rubbers and boots; c. - clothing for children between ages 4 to 14. The Visiting Nurses want, a. - women's night-gowns; b. - shawls and robes; c. - slippersocks and bedsocks; d. - sheets, pillowcases, towels, and washcloths.

Needed by the Family Service, a. - all kinds of clothing for children between the ages 3 to 12; b. - warm infants wear and blankets; c. - clothes for the older group, ages 12 to 18. The Warren Relief is in need of, a. - clothing for school children such as: flannel shirts, jeans, sweaters, anything suitable for school wear for the age group 6 to 14; b. - infants wear; c. - blankets and afghans for the very elderly.

This year, for the first time, indigent patients of Warren State Hospital and Warren General Hospital have been added to the list of those to be helped. The needs of Warren State Hospital are, a. - nightgowns and bathrobes; b. - slippersocks; c. - colorful cotton dresses. Warren General Hospital could use, a. - very small shirts, pajamas and slippersocks; b. - very large bathrobes. (It is suggested that anyone who wishes to do so may donate money for the purchase of these necessary items for Warren General Hospital because of the specialized need in sizes.)

The In-gathering Day will be held in the Woman's Club on Friday, November 4. Tea will be served from 3 to 4 p. m. At this time all donated garments will be on display. Everything donated is required to be new and two of a kind. However, when giving a garment of greater cost the directors of the Warren Branch of the Needlework Guild have agreed that the "rule of two" may be dispensed with.

It is the established custom of the Needlework Guild to collect these necessities for the various agencies but once a year on what is known as their "In-gathering Day". The donations are then distributed to the organizations concerned who use the garments and other items throughout the year as needed. Any person who so desires may designate to which organization a particular donation is to go.

THE MARXENS moved into their All-Gas home in Pittsburgh in June of '57. All of the major household jobs are done by modern, automatic gas appliances . . . cooling, heating, cooking, clothes drying, water heating, and the Marxens are enjoying the low fuel bills typical of All-Gas Homes.

"WE SAVE OVER $350* A YEAR IN OUR ALL-GAS HOUSE OF SAVINGS," SAY THE MARXENS

Amazed at low cost of central GAS cooling and heating

MRS. MARXEN PREFERS GAS COOKING because—as she puts it—"You don't get the exacting control with electric that you do with gas." Mrs. Marxen is always sure of perfect results with her modern built-in gas range with the Burner-with-a-Brain. Her kitchen walls and curtains stay bright and new because gas cooking is clean.

During three of the hottest summers and coldest winters in recent years, cooling and heating their entire 5 level, 6 room house with gas cost the Marxens only an average of $25 a month. "That's one good reason why we like our gas system best," says Mr. Marxen.

"And what comfort we've had!" adds Mrs. Marxen. "Every room is just the way we like it—without drafts. The house stays cleaner, too."

The Marxens are sold on gas appliances not only because they're economical, but because they assure safe, dependable operation with low upkeep. "What little service we've needed has been handled quickly, efficiently and courteously by the Gas Company," says Mr. Marxen.

You, too, can enjoy modern living with convenience and comfort as well as economy—by installing all gas appliances in your home.

PTA ACTIVITIES

HOME STREET SCHOOL PARENTS GROUP . . . will have Open House in conjunction with National Education Week, on Monday, November 7, from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

There will be no business meeting, instead the entire evening will be devoted to room visitation. Refreshments will be served, compliments of RALPH'S MARKET, and it is hoped that a large group of parents will be present to evince an interest in their children's education, and to enjoy the delicious refreshments.

TE LA DI O

SATURATION POINT

Five-minute, ten-minute, and 15-minute political blurbs scheduled in these final days of the election campaign are not being listed on your Observer television guide. The longer and more important broadcasts by both major parties are listed, however. If you are terribly anxious to hear every spoken word, just tune in your set and let it roar. Almost every hour finds at least a brief political telecast on the local, state or national level.

ELECTION COVERAGE

Tuesday evening, Nov. 8, will find almost continuous coverage of election developments and returns on the networks.

NBC Network will use, for the first time on television, and in politics, the RCA 501, an electronic data processing system which will forecast the Presidential winner far in advance of the final tally. Returns on House and Senate seats will be included in the coverage.

HUNTLEY-BRINKLEY REPORT RENEWED

Texaco has renewed its full sponsorship of the NBC TV network's award-winning news program which is seen Mondays through Fridays at 7:45-7 p.m. The program has been sponsored by Texaco since June 29, 1959, and the new contract will carry it through 1961.

Both Chet Huntley and Dave Brinkley have won many individual awards and prizes. The program, this past year, received the Emmy Award, The TV Radio Mirror Award, the TV Guide Award, the Saturday Review of Literature Award and the General Federation of Women's Clubs Award.

IN THE FUTURE

THE RED BALLOON, a French film fantasy, has been purchased by CBS for presentation on GE Theatre. The story concerns a small boy who finds a balloon which follows him wherever he goes. It will be seen later in the season.

ROBERT YOUNG, star of "Father Knows Best," is planning a new series for CBS to be presented in the fall of 1961. It will be a warm, human comedy program, a half-hour in length and scheduled for weekly viewing. ABC bought the backlog of "Father Knows Best" films and will begin presenting them regularly after CBS completes its current schedule of returns.

Public Events . . .

THE BENEFIT BALL . . . to be given next Saturday, November 5, in the K. of C. Ballroom, and sponsored by Court Warren #834, Catholic Daughters of America and Warren Countil #964, Knights of Columbus, is well past the planning stage now. Ticket sales are mounting as the time draws near for the Ball, the proceeds of which will be turned over to Father Mark Roueche's Chapel Fund at Warren State Hospital.

So far, donations have been received from five Knights of Columbus Councils in the Erie Diocese; eight Catholic Daughter Courts in the Erie Diocese have also made generous contributions to the worthy benefit.

The semi-formal affair will be from 9:30 to 1:30, with George Johnson, his orchestra and vocalist, providing music that all present will enjoy dancing to. The Dominotes of the Warren Barbershoppers, will also be on the program to entertain and delight those present with their songs. Refreshments will be available throughout the evening.

Tickets for the Ball are on sale at the United News and Tobacco Store, Mac's News, B & B Smoke Shop, and the following ticket chairman and committee: Benjamin Scalise, RA3-7250 or RA3-6627; Joseph Musante, RA3-9720; Mrs. Robert Daye, RA3-6181; Mrs. George Kaleina, RA3-2992. Tickets are $3.00 per couple, or $2.00 single.

At a committee meeting held Monday evening, final arrangements were made for the affair, and members ask that ticket sellers make their returns to the ticket chairmen no later than Friday, November 4.

The public is cordially invited to attend by co-chairmen Mrs. John Shaffer and Frank Chiodo.

WASHINGTON VICTORIOUS IN CHADAKOIN LEAGUE

Washington junior high school, of Jamestown, won the Chadakoin Junior High School Football League Thursday with a 27-6 triumph over Lincoln. The locals of Beaty Junior high also closed out the year's activity with a solid 33-14 romping over Falconer. Southwestern ended its season on a winning note by nosing out Jefferson, 13-6.

Chuckie Kurz sparked the locals with a pair of six-pointers and two conversions. He scored the opening TD on a 45-yard run, and then caught a 25-yard pass later in the game for his second score.

Vince Pace, who hit Kurz with that pass, also connected with Tim Barner for a score in the early stages of the game. Ken Peterson went 45 yards for the fourth tally, and Frank Kent finished the locals' scoring with a two-yard plunge in the last stanza.

The team, coached by Deane Passmore and Dick Mitchell, finished the season with a record of three wins, one loss, and one tie.

CITY LEAGUE TO FORM

All interested basketball players, who would like to play in the YMCA City League, are asked to meet at the Y Tuesday evening at 7 p.m. for the organizational meeting Physical Director Bob Hammerbeck Indicates that prospects are good for a six-team league as many new men have expressed interest in playing on the Y court this season.

Sheffield in Big Test; Warren to Kane

A full slate of gridiron games are on tap for the local schools this Saturday, but the focus of attention will be Memorial field in Sheffield where the Wolverines, who are unbeaten and untied in seven games, entertain the strong Port Allegany team. The time for the opening kickoff has been set for 1:30 p.m.

Sheffield is rolling along in high gear, having murdered the Coudersport eleven, 47-0, last weekend for its seventh win of the campaign and its ninth straight since the close of last season. Both teams are currently knotted for the AML leadership, having won five games without a setback.

Port Allegany will certainly be no easy touch for the squad of Lou DeRubies. The 'Gators have been beaten only once this season, that at the hands of the Kane High Wolves, 33-21, and the Hilltoppers had to capitalize on two PA fumbles to win the contest.

The road between Warren and Kane should be well traveled as a large delegation of Warren fans are expected to follow the Blue and White to the Hilltop where they face the once-beaten Kane high Wolves. The Dragons can expect a much rougher battle from the Wolves than they received from Ridgway as the Kane eleven has rolled with ease over some larger schools in the area. Last Friday evening, however, they suffered a 26-12 loss to the Corry Beavers.

Warren will be at full strength for the big game with Johnny Wooster, Dave Green, Pat Hartnett, and either Dave Reynolds or Rog Colvin in the backfield. The Blue and White's improving defense has been much publicized, and Coach Veights would like nothing better than to see the defensive squad duplicate its efforts of the Erie Academy and Ridgway games. The locals' record for the season now stands at three wins, a same number of losses, and one tie.

Youngsville (3-3-1) is also on the road as the Eagles journey to Salamanca where they will face an inexperienced, but surprising New York state team. Last Saturday the Sallies swamped Dunkirk, 39-14, while the Eagles were downing Randolph - East Mead, 39-14. The Salamanca battle will be the final game of the season for the Youngsville charges of Dave Hilbert.

Northern Area, holding a season's log of three wins in five games, hosts the weak sister of the Northwestern Football Conference, Westfield. The Knights are coming on strong after a sluggish start as last week they snowed under Bemus Point, 25-7.

Westfield stands at 0-4 in the conference activity, and should provide little resistance for the Knights. The boys from the lake front were slaughtered, 34-0, by Cassadaga Valley last Saturday after having been walloped by Silver Creek, 62-0, the previous Saturday.

Cassadaga Valley and Silver Creek both hold unblemished slates in the Northwestern Football Conference.

Safety First, Hunters

The influx of hunters into the area soon will be felt as the small game season opens tomorrow and the bigger game seasons scheduled for the not-too-distant future. Every year a number of very avoidable accidents occur, whether they be self-inflicted or by the inattentiveness of a fellow woodsman. Following are just a few items which should be kept in mind by everyone while traipsing the hillsides of the forests.

Wear bright clothing . . . blaze orange has been determined as the safest.

Unload your fingers BEFORE entering a camp, home, or car.

Be careful someone doesn't move into your line of fire.

Check your line of fire, especially noting the area in back of your target.

Make sure your target is legal game, and not an unsuspecting hunter.

If you must rest your firearm, make sure it sits securely.

Be careful of your footing . . a fall can endanger not only your life, but your companion's.

Your firearm should not be used to club cover or game. "I didn't know it was loaded", an age-old excuse that we hope you do not have to use.

If these few minor rules are kept in mind, everyone should have an accident-free and very prosperous hunting season.

NA Homecoming Sat.

This Saturday's contest between the Northern Area Knights and Westfield marks the 1960 Homecoming for Eisenhower High School. Action on the EHS gridiron between the two squads of the Northwestern Football Conference will commence at 1:30 p.m.

The Press Club of EHS announces that the Queen and her court, who will reign over the festivities of the day, will make an appearance on a float, erected by the students, during the intermission of the game.

The Eisenhower high Band will lead the halftime show, and the newly formed Twirlers group will give a dazzling exhibition with their whirling batons.

KEGLERS ALLEY

YOUR FOREST RANGER

By Larry Stotz

It was the middle of October on Tionesta Creek -- a stream that flows through the heart of the Allegheny National Forest. The plateau that fed this little creek was dry and dusty beneath the leaf mold. The fire prevention signs were up along the road that slashed the steep hillside above the stream, and I had stopped to examine one of them. I turned to look at the pageant of color on the wooded slopes around me, and realized that I was witnessing the final act in a drama that had started with the opening of the first leaf bud in early May.

A hawk floated carelessly above me, his discerning eye taking in every detail of the landscape. As I stepped over to the steep bank at the side of the road and looked down I realized how much ugliness this winged one had to look down upon. Bracing myself, I picked my way carefully down the treacherous slope.

The broken bottles that I tramped upon clawed at my heavily-booted feet. A musty stench greeted me, and I paused again to look across the valley at the mosaic of color that shaded a hillside that was free of roads and man's litter.

A leaf as red as the life blood of an arrow-pierced buck fluttered to earth in front of me, and clung to the dried vertebra of a deer that had been killed by a car. Its battered body had been tossed over the bank to rest on top of a pile of rusty tin cans and broken bottles. Its bones had been picked clean by scavengers, and bits of hair clung to the greasy garbage that coated the leaf mold.

I searched for clues as to the identity of some of the people who had fouled the landscape about me, and found a large paper bag that had been tossed down the slope only a few days before. After I had poked into its contents I concluded that whoever had packed the bag was both neat and thorough.

Even a garbage dump can become a school for conjecture, and I reasoned that the trespasser was a woman. She must have been fussy about the home, and a pinch-penny for inside the bag were five compact packages. Each probably represented the refuse left over from a single day's meals. The evening paper was used each time to wrap the accumulation of garbage. But wrapping it carefully in a newspaper, so that it presented a neat flat package, was not enough. She had tied each of them tightly with string before she had stuffed them into the bag. I reasoned that she was also a string saver.

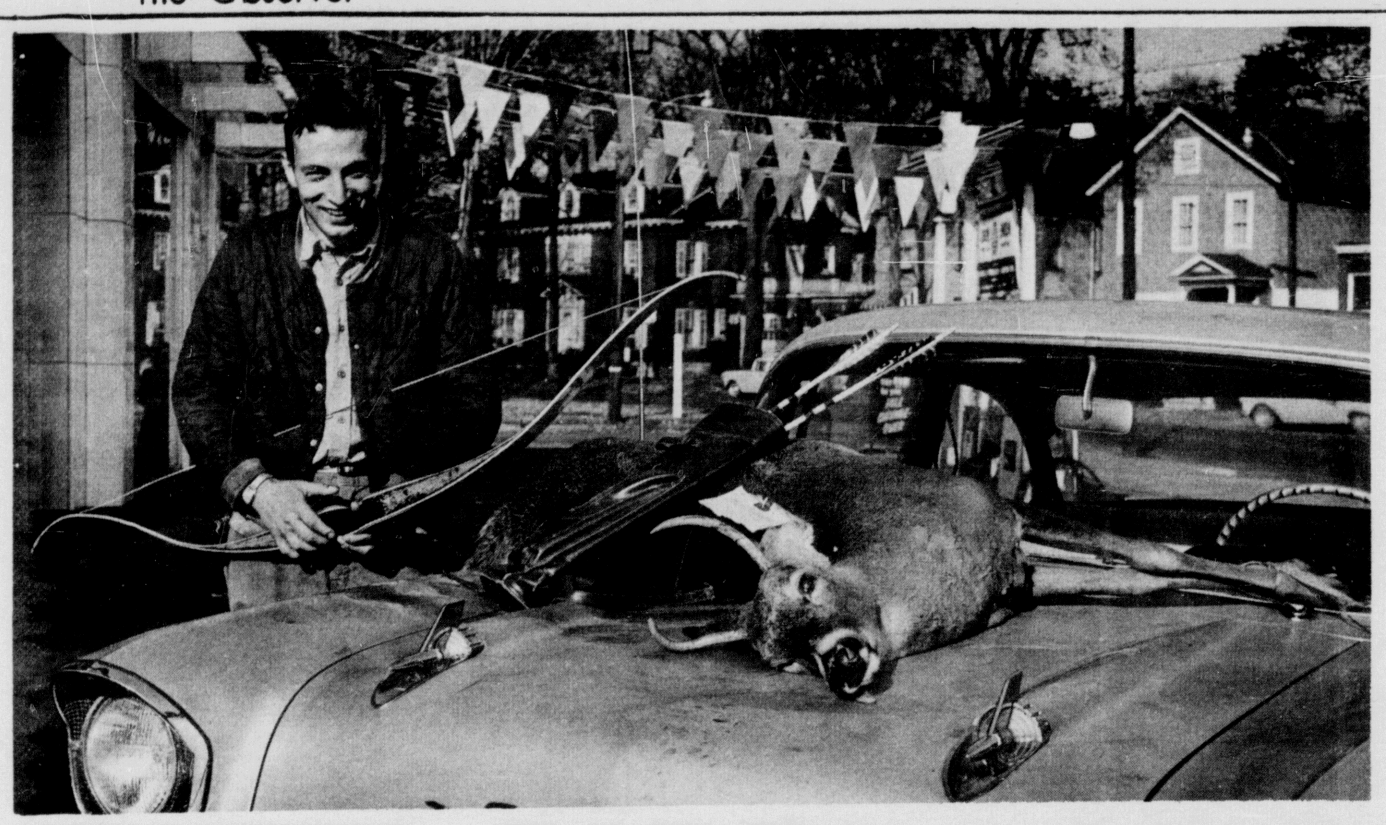

By the end of the week the bag was full. It must be gotten rid of. The long awaited ride through the forest to see the autumn coloring could now serve a dual purpose. She could drink in the beauty of the forest, and at the same time get rid of the week's garbage. With the paper bag stowed away on the floor board of the car she and her husband had circled the valleys enjoying the free show that Nature had put on for all who appreciate beauty. Then they had come to a wide place in the road above Tionesta Creek where a yellow sign warned of the growing danger of fire in the woods. They had lingered only long enough for the woman, who was a paragon of neatness in her home, to flip the bag full of garbage over the bank.

As I returned to my car I thought of the fire prevention sign beside the road. So fire conscious has the public become in recent years that this great destroyer of natural resources is now held within acceptable bounds on the Allegheny National Forest. But what of this other threat -- the destruction of scenic values by the careless, the miserly and the filthy?

Laws have been enacted to prevent dumping along highways and streams. They provide for heavy fines upon conviction. Similar laws are on the statute books to help prevent man-caused fires in the forest, and to punish those who set them.

Why then is the incidence of man-caused fires down on the Allegheny National Forest while the fouling of the landscape continues to increase? There is nothing spectacular about an unauthorized garbage dump. It throws up no warning smoke column, but it can be just as destructive of land values as fire.

If the Allegheny National Forest and the surrounding wooded country that borders the site of the Allegheny Reservoir are to become part of a new American vacationland the "litter bug" will have to be drastically curbed. He can no longer be permitted to use the landscape as a vast rug to sweep his trash under.

ONE OF THE FEW lucky archers in Warren County was Jim English who downed this three-point buck Saturday morning at 7:15 a.m. in the Cherry Grove area. Using a 41-pound bow, Jim unleashed a 45-yard shot at the whitetail, the arrow piercing the lungs of the deer, which caused immediate death.

The avid bow and arrow fan is president of the Warren Archery Club. He has been pursuing deer in this ancient fashion for the past five seasons, but this is the first buck which has fallen victim to his skill.
